Description: The Indian Health Service Office of Urban Indian Health Programs awards grants to urban Indian organizations across the country. These grants make health care services more accessible for American Indians and Alaska Natives residing in urban areas and will support operations at urban health care facilities.

The 4-in-1 grant program provides funding to UIOs to ensure comprehensive, culturally acceptable personal and public health services are available and accessible to the Urban Indian population. The grants provide funding that encompass four health program areas: (1) Health Promotion and Disease Prevention Services, (2) Immunization Services, (3) Alcohol and Substance Abuse Services, and (4) Mental Health Services. These programs are integral components of the IHS health care delivery system and the grant funding will benefit thousands of urban Indian patients. For additional information about the 4-in-1 Grant Program, visit <https://www.ihs.gov/urban/4-in-1-grant-program/> or <https://www.govinfo.gov/content/pkg/FR-2021-11-10/pdf/FR-2021-11-10.pdf#page=89>.

The IHS Office of Urban Indian Health Programs was established in 1976 to make health care services more accessible to urban Indians. IHS enters into limited, competing contracts and grants with 41 urban Indian nonprofit organizations to provide health care and referral services for urban Indians throughout the United States. Urban Indian organizations define their services based upon the service population, health status, and documented unmet needs of the urban Indian communities they serve. Urban Indian organizations provide health care services for urban Indians who do not have access to the resources offered through IHS or tribally operated health care facilities because they do not live on or near a reservation.

The IHS, an agency in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, provides a comprehensive health service delivery system for approximately 2.6 million American Indians and Alaska Natives. Our mission is to raise the physical, mental, social, and spiritual health of American Indians and Alaska Natives to the highest level.
